A COMPROMISE CASE AFFIRMED.

Court of Appeals Bands Down Four Opinions and Adjourns for the

The Supreme Court of Appeals yes terday decided again the case of Rosen-baum's executors against Seddon, from he Law and Equity Court of the city of Richmond. Judge J. W. Riely delivered the opinion, and the result was to affirm the judgment of the lower court. The case grew out of the fact that on March 11, 1881, Rosenbaum and Seddon attered into an agreement by which Rosenbaum agreed to sell to Seddon 250 states of the court will meet in Wyther Wile June 8th. of Richmond. The Compromise Must Stand. fudge Riely prepared the opinion in th dge Riely prepared the opinion in the of Epes and others against Williams Administrator, from the Circuit of Nottoway county. In 1875 apparts, who were complainants in the thelow, brought suit against the adistrator of the female compainant. John L. Irby and his sureties for a lement of his accounts as their guarant, and to recover the amount in which should be found to be indebted. The trodered the account to be taken settled by one of its commissioners was done, exceptions were filed by isides, and it was recommitted. Sevesettlements of the account were made reported to the court during the two res the cause was pending. beyment of their claims.

COULD NOT ANNUL IT.

Eleven years after this compromise suit was brought by complainants to set aside and annul the compromise, and for a reopening and resettling of the account with the guardian, contending that while they did not charge fraud or decelt, they reserved the right to amend their bill. If, in the progress of the cause, the facts developed should justify them in doing so. The gravamen of the suit was that the compromise was very unequal to them, and that they were ignorant of all the facts.

The opinion holds that the record wholly falled to show that there was any fraud or misrepresentation in the case. Its object was to satisfy and forever settle the entire liability of the guardian, etc. Certain objections offered at this time should have been raised at the time of the making of the compromise.

After referring to the decidedly mixed condition of the accounts, the court says that the compromise was not entered into until every effort had been made to ascertain the extent of the liability of the guardian to the complainants, and the inter had entered into it not inadvisedly or inconsiderately, but with the full knowledge of all the circumstances in the case. Judge Riely holds that a compromise of an uncertain liability entered into under such circumstances fully executed and acquieszed in for eleven years should not be set aside, except upon the clearest proof of fraud, misrepresentation, concealment, or mutual mistake. The decree of the lower court is affirmed.

Decrees in Will Cases.

Another opinion rendered in the Court of Appea's yesterday was that of Sims against Sims, from the Circuit Court of Greene county, the opinion in which was prepared by Judge Riely. This involved the construction of a will, and the decision discussed throughout the difference between an interlocutory and a final decree, saying: "The decree (the one in question) referred the cause to one of the commissioners of the court, to take, state, and report at its next term an account of the transactions of the executor, and also an account of the debis, if any, against the estate. Such an order is of the very essence of an interlocutory decree. (Templeman vs. Steptoe 1, Mun. 255; Barker vs. Jenkins, Så Virginia, Så etc.) It is difficult to understand how a decree, which ordered such accounts to be taken and reported to the court could be considered final." The details of the will are the discussed by Judge Riely. The court holds that John B. Sims is sufficiently designated as the sole beneficiary of the trust, and the lower court is affirmed.

Judge Harrison prepared and delivered the opinion in the case of Demaine & Son acainst the Washington Southers Railway Company, in which the judgment of the Circuit Court of Fairfax is reversed. Demaine & Son sued the railway company for damages to their horse and hearse by a collision between them and a railroad train, and the jury awarded them damages in the sum of $790. The court however, gave judgment upon the demurrer of the defendant. The Court of Appeals holds that the evidence was sufficient for such a verdict.

Do you know what an "emulsion is?" It is when each drop of the oil is broken up into minute drops, so small you can hardly see them with the microscope: so minute that they pass at once through the tissues into the circulation. Scott's Emulsion does not disturb digestion, is not mpleasant to take, and does not fail to do its work because digestion can deal with it at once. Mr. Frederick Hunter Wyatt and Miss Lottle Bell Bigger were united in mar-riage at the home of the bride's father, Colonel John Bell Bigger, No. 362 cast Leigh street, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It was an ideal day for a wedding, and no bride ever had more beautiful and inspiring weather in which to start upon her honeymoon. The parlors of the house were taste-fully decorated. In the large bay win-dow was erected a temporary altar, the background of which was composed of Easter lilies, palms, and ferns, from among which there were many lights from candles, arranged in antique canlelabra. It was with such surroundings as these that Mr. Wyatt and Miss Bigger were married. Rev. Fenner S. Stickney, rector of Monumental church, performed the ceremony, and Mr. Vance Brewer, of Gordonsville, played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bridal coterie entered the parlors.

Yesterday's session was fargely devoted to the introduction and acceptance

The first order of business after the gave in his report a brief synopsis of the work done during the past year, and advised the order of the appointment of

to succeed the late William Lovenstein.
He told concisely of the state of the

"Through Colonial Doorways."

The interest in the new and unique Colonial reception to be given at the commodious residence of Dr. W. E. Hatcher. 608 west Grace street, on Thursday evening of this week (22d) is very widespread. It is founded purely on historical facts, and, besides being a most pleasureable entertainment, will be an intellectual exercise as well. The early sad days of the Puritans, when they often sighed for the loved ones of the old country, will be seen in the pantomimie exercises of the beautiful poem of Longfellow in his "Courtship of Miles Standish." The programme, though short, is replete with interesting numbers. The rehearsal last evening was most satisfactory, and high hopes are indulged in of an evening of great enjoyment and of financial success.

May Be Internally Injured.

The condition of little Willie B, Gosden, the son of Mr. W. W. Gosden, who was thrown from the track of the Chesapeake and Ohio trestie near Eighteenth street Monday evening, is somewhat improved, though the full extent of his injuries cannot yet be learned. It is feared that internal injuries have been sustained. He was resting quietly yesterday.

The Ind, with a friend, was crossing the trestie, and the two were fairly beyond, when the former thought of the trestie, and the two were fairly be-yond, when the former thought of his little dog, and seeing it on the track just in front of an approaching engine, ran back to rescue it, and was struck by the great fron prow. No blame is at-tached to the crew in charge of the train.
